

FINDS HER BLIND FATHER SUICIDE

Daughter of Bernard Kruger, Who Ends Long Struggle Against Eye Trouble by Hanging Himself, Discovers Body.

WOULD NOT LET WIFE SUPPORT HIM LONGER.

Seven Years He Suffered from Poor Sight, and for Eleven Years Was Blind and Unable to Aid Spouse.

Unwilling to let his faithful wife support him any longer, Bernard Kruger, a blind man, hanged himself in the kitchen of his home at No. 1201 Third avenue. His body was found when Mrs. Kruger and the four small children returned from church.

For seventeen years Kruger has been able to do little but care for his eyes, and for eleven years he has been almost totally blind. The small fortune he had saved before his affliction was swept away in hospital and doctor fees and he was penniless.

When Mrs. Kruger was forced to take in washing to care for the family the man chafed, for he was strong and rugged and willing to work. He lent her all the assistance possible, but at best he could do little. That she should support herself and the children was enough, and each day he mourned his fate.

It has long been feared that he would end his life, but yesterday he seemed cheerful and Mrs. Kruger consented to go to church with the children. The eldest daughter went into the kitchen when they returned, where she found her father's body hanging from a hook above the door.

Ambulance Is Called.
Mrs. Kruger cut the rope with a knife and an ambulance was called. The physician was too late. After his wife had gone Kruger had groped his way into the kitchen and felt along the walls until he found the clothesline. He put a noose around his neck, stood on a chair and stepped off.

Kruger, born in Germany, was a soldier for the Fatherland in the Franco-Prussian war, and won the commendation of his officers for meritorious service in the field. After the war of the campaign left with him the germ of a disease which finally destroyed his sight. After his discharge from military service Kruger became a steward in the employ of the Hamburg-American line. He has aboard the Pomeranian when she was sunk in the Straits of Dover, in 1892.

Opened a Hotel.
When he left the sea he purchased a small hotel in Hamburg. His business was successful, but suddenly there came the warning of approaching blindness. The business had to be given up, and Kruger entered the Villa Elizabeth, a famous sanitarium in Hamburg. While there he met Mrs. William Astor, who had sympathized with him in his affliction. Kruger spent every dollar he had saved in fruitless endeavors to be cured.

Eleven years ago Kruger moved with his family to this country. He found employment at the best restaurants, but his eyes were so "failing" that he could no longer work. Mrs. Astor, who had sympathized with him, was dead. The support of his family devolved upon the mother. There were four children, all too young to work. Mrs. Kruger was obliged to take in washing to support the family.

A few weeks ago Kruger was removed from his home to a hospital and operated on here for appendicitis. He returned about two weeks ago.

HONEYMOON WAS ONLY THREE DAYS

Suzanne Sheldon, Separated in London by Demands of Her Profession from Henry Ainley, Meets Him Here.

The most interested spectator at the special performance of Capt. Barrington at the Manhattan Theatre last night was Henry Ainley, leading man for Mabel Adams. Only a few hours before he had met, for the first time in months, his wife, Suzanne Sheldon, Mr. Richmond's leading lady who was separated from Ainley by the demands of her profession when their honeymoon was only three days old.

They were married last spring in St. George's Chapel, Hanover Square, London. Just after the ceremony the bride received cablegrams from her managers, Weber & Fields, summoning her to New York immediately. She sailed on the first ship.

Mr. Ainley was engaged in London and could not come to New York. When he did get here he joined the company of Miss Adams, while his wife was playing in Boston in "Captain Barrington."

The Adams company was on the road until last week and Mr. Ainley had no opportunity to reach Boston. So the newly wedded pair were kept apart until Mr. Richmond's company got to town yesterday.

DOUBLE BRIDE CRIES IN COURT

Margaret Farnington, the Eighteen-Year-Old Girl, Who Was Twice Married, Becomes Hysterical at Bigamy Trial.

The trial of Margaret Farnington, the eighteen-year-old girl who married two men in as many days, in the Queens County Court, Long Island City, for bigamy, was brought to a sudden close last afternoon when the young woman became hysterical and was carried shrieking from the court-room. After court was adjourned she became so unmanageable that she had to be taken to the St. John's Hospital.

Before becoming hysterical the girl had been on the stand and testified that she spent the evening after her first marriage playing tag with a number of boys about her home. Her father corroborated this testimony.

The jury consisted entirely of married men, all of whom have daughters of their own. The girl was taken to the hospital and it was found that all told the juryman had forty-one daughters to their credit. Margaret declared at the time of her arrest that she was forced into the marriage with Frederick S. Kirkman and that the second marriage, in which a soldier had been the other principal, was of her choice.

Husband No. 1 took the stand and testified that he was engaged to Margaret for a year; that on Oct. 11 he received a note from her to meet her at the Thirtieth street ferry, New York, and that the two were married. He testified that he had seen her in the city of New York, at No. 219 East Twenty-seventh street. They were married and then returned home to Whitestone. Mr. Thorpe corroborated the fact of the ceremony.

Then Edward J. Roach, the soldier bridegroom, was called. He was married to Margaret on Oct. 12, the day after the first marriage. He testified that he was married to her in the city of New York, at the same place as the first marriage. He testified that he was married to her in the city of New York, at the same place as the first marriage.

MRS. CARTER CLAIMS "ZAZA."

Admitted as a Defendant in Suit of Henri Gressit.

Directly following the motion of A. H. Hummel in behalf of Henri Gressit for an injunction forbidding David Belasco to present "Zaza" at the Belasco Theatre or elsewhere, called for argument to-day before Justice Scott, the Supreme Court, De Lancy Nicoll asked the Court to permit Mrs. Leslie Carter to appear as a defendant. He said:

"Mrs. Carter claims that she has an agreement with Mr. Belasco under which she alone may present 'Zaza,' and it is she who is now presenting the play in this city. This agreement was executed long before the alleged contract under which Henri Gressit claims the right to the play.

There was no objection and Justice Scott ordered the hearing until Wednesday.

SHOT HIS BROTHER IN WIVES' QUARREL

James Keelan Seriously Wounds Edward Because of Spouse's Refusal to Speak to Her New Sister-in-Law.

In a row which is said to have been occasioned because Mrs. James Keelan would not speak to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Edward Keelan, James Keelan, thirty-one years old, is alleged to have shot his brother Edward in the right breast.

Edward Keelan, who is twenty-three years old, is now in the Fordham Hospital and is in a very critical condition. James is a prisoner in the Morrisania police station. He was arraigned to-day and held without bail to await the result of the medical examination.

The shooting occurred in the hallway of the six-story tenement at No. 1038 Webster avenue, where James Keelan and his wife live. James is a plumber and Edward a boiler-maker, employed by the Interborough Company.

The brothers had been estranged for some months because of the marriage of Edward, whose family opposed his marriage to a girl named Kate Keelan.

On Saturday, it is said, the brothers met and agreed to patch up their differences. Edward and his wife Kate called at the home of James Keelan and, according to the story told by Mrs. Edward Keelan, a row was started because Mrs. Kate Keelan refused to speak to her sister-in-law.

"My husband finally said to me, 'Well, Kate, we had better leave,' said Mrs. Edward Keelan. 'As we started to go James ran up behind Edward and shot him, saying, 'Take that with you.' Mrs. Kate Keelan ran into the street and found a policeman who called an ambulance and made search for James. He had disappeared, but detectives later found him in hiding in a room at the hotel where he had been hiding. At first he said he had fired in self-defense, but only after Edward had drawn a revolver on him. Later he denied having fired the shot at all.

He was taken to the hospital to be identified by his brother, but the latter refused to do so. The police, however, removed the vesting rights of others, nor could it be construed to deprive him of his rights. The police, however, removed the vesting rights of others, nor could it be construed to deprive him of his rights.

Rev. Dr. Schneider, of No. 27 Second avenue, was the second clergyman to take the stand during the day. He identified Roach, the United States marine attached to the station at Willett's Point, as the party to the second marriage. Miss Farnington's father was on the stand for a time, but gave no statement.

The interest of the day centered in the young woman herself. Her testimony, told during the day, was referred to her associations with Kirkman and Roach.

He told her that the former had often treated her, and that she was forced to marry him at the point of a revolver. In fear of her life she consented. Then, after the ceremony in New York, she rushed back to her soldier lover, who, she said, so cute, her fears that she was ready to repent the performance.

He told her that being under age the marriage was void and that she was free to embark upon the same sea a second time. While crossing on the ferry which took them to Manhattan she showed Roach the wedding ring, he took it and used it a few hours later.

TWO GIRLS MISSING.
Mary and Lizzie Latimer disappeared from their home in Brooklyn. The police have been asked to find Mary Latimer, seventeen years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighing 115 pounds, who has been missing since Nov. 21. When she left her home at No. 63 Duane street she wore a black, blue and red waist and skirt and black hat with plume.

They were also asked to find Lizzie Latimer, of the same address, 7 feet tall, weighing 125 pounds, with dark complexion and hair, wearing a dark jacket and blue straw hat.

NEELY MUST LOSE $20,000 DEPOSIT

Judge Lacombe Declines to Dismiss Motion Made to Vacate Attachment Filed Against Bail by United States.

Judge Lacombe in the United States Circuit Court to-day handed down an opinion declining to dismiss the motion made by Charles F. W. Neely to vacate the attachment filed by the United States against $20,000 in cash deposited by him as bail with the Register of the United States Circuit Court in this district.

In his opinion Judge Lacombe states that the legal questions involved are too important to be finally passed upon on a mere motion, and suggests that the questions be properly raised on the trial, when the merits can be fully gone into, exceptions taken and a review had by the appellate tribunals. The chief question raised involves an interpretation of the act of amnesty passed by the Cuban Congress in May, 1902, whereby all Americans convicted of crime in Cuba during the occupancy of the island were pardoned.

Neely was arrested in this city in 1900 and deposited $20,000 in cash bail for his appearance in Cuba for trial on a charge of embezzling $45,375 from the island's postal funds. Subsequently he was convicted, but was saved from the consequences of his crime by the act of amnesty, which in his case, as in that of all other Americans convicted there, operated as a pardon.

Prior to this, however, the United States commenced a civil action in this district to recover the $20,000 cash deposited as bail, contending the money so deposited properly belonged to Cuba, from which Government Neely had embezzled it. Neely's counsel then made a motion to dismiss the attachment and civil proceedings on the ground that the act of amnesty, operating as it did, removed with it all penalties and disabilities, and that he should, therefore, be returned to him.

Capt. William S. Ball, Assistant U. S. District Attorney, submitted a brief in behalf of the Government in opposition to the motion which the court sustained. The court, however, did not remove the vesting rights of others, nor could it be construed to deprive him of his rights. The police, however, removed the vesting rights of others, nor could it be construed to deprive him of his rights.

Three shocks were given before Gamari was pronounced dead. Gamari entered the death chamber at 3.23 P. M. In front of him walked Warden Johnson and on either side were two priests from New York, Rev. Father B. Pili-lizzo, of the Church of the Most Precious Blood, and Father Leonard Florio, of St. Anthony's Church.

WOMAN CONFESSED IN COURT
Told How She Became a Confirmed Smoker of Opium.

A woman of twenty-eight years old, who gave her name as Josephine Smith, confessed to Magistrate Mayo, in the Essex Market Court to-day, that she was a slave to the opium habit.

The woman was arrested in her room at No. 28 East Broadway in company with Edward Armistage, who was charged with maintaining an opium joint. The court had given her a "layout" was found, the case was dismissed in court and the woman discharged. After the court had given her advice to use her best efforts to fight the habit, she said she was a woman of refinement.

"Five years ago I became acquainted with a woman who used the drug. I had the 'pipe' and 'layout' for my own use. I have tried every means to overcome the craving, but I cannot. I have medicine in my possession that I can show you.

The woman showed evidences of the habit. She looked as if she had been in the street for some time. She was very weak and she could hardly totter from the court-room.

NEIGHBOR BALKED AT YELLOW PAINT

When Jager Bought to Decorate His House, Schroeder, Who Lives Next Door, Put a Stop to It.

JOB STILL UNFINISHED.

With Three Sides of His Home a Brilliant Canary Color, the Unhappy Owner Goes to Court in Vain for Relief.

Frederick Jager, an architect, owns a three-story frame house at No. 177 Weeks avenue, and three weeks ago he decided to paint it yellow. In a few days three of its sides had been painted, but the fourth had not, and thereby hangs the tale. That Mr. Jager told Magistrate Baker in the Morrisania Court to-day.

"My next-door neighbor is George H. Schroeder," said Mr. Jager, "and he owns the house at No. 175. Between our houses is an alleyway, four feet wide. Of that ground I own three feet and one-half inch, and Schroeder owns the remainder. About a year ago Schroeder had some workmen doing some repairs on his house and they worked on Sunday. I objected and he has been angry ever since. Therefore, when I tried to paint the side of my house that runs along the alleyway he tried in every way to stop me.

"I started to paint the house by using ladders. They rested on Schroeder's ground and he made me take them off. I thought I would get the best of him in having the painting done from a swinging scaffold lowered from the roof, but no. Schroeder got a lot of beams and stuck them out of the windows of his house. They reached within my three and a half inches of space and my project had to be abandoned.

"After a few days I decided that by using a swinging chair my painter could get underneath the beams, and one Saturday I stole a march on Mr. Schroeder and got a small portion of the wall painted.

"As soon as I saw what I was doing he got a laborer and put a lot of long poles in the ground next to the wall, so that the swinging chair had to be discontinued. I then gave it up as a bad job and appeal to you to help me.

Magistrate Baker said he was very sorry, but could do nothing, and Mr. Jager went away.

AGED SPOUSE MUST PAY HER ALIMONY

Justice Scott, of the Supreme Court, to-day awarded alimony of $10 a week to Mrs. Chopola Viola Bulkeley, whose husband, Washington Bulkeley, is at sixty-three just three times her age and is suing her for absolute divorce. She rejoined with a counterclaim, declaring that her aged spouse is more friendly than he should be with a middle-aged Brooklyn widow with whom she lodges, he takes drives on the Eastern Boulevard and down the speedway to Coney Island, stopping at the road-houses to refresh the inner man—and woman.

Justice Scott allowed her $100 for her lawyer.

Three shocks were given before Gamari was pronounced dead. Gamari entered the death chamber at 3.23 P. M. In front of him walked Warden Johnson and on either side were two priests from New York, Rev. ## LOVE AFFAIR LED TO HIS SUICIDE

Letters Found in Room of New York Man, Who Killed Himself in Rhode Island, Tell of Failure as Suitor.

GIRL'S NAME ON ENVELOPE.

Police Take This as a Clue and Notify Her of the Tragic Occurrence—Victim Had Apparently Written Threat of Self-Destruction.

(Special to The Evening World.)
PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 23.—Despondency over a love affair, that to judge from letters found in his room did not go smoothly, led a man said to be Albert Stahl, thirty-five years old, of No. 208 East Eighty-fourth street, New York, to commit suicide in his room at the Elmwood boarding-house, by inhaling illuminating gas.

He was found dead to-day by his landlady. Stahl had worked for the New York Manufacturing Company for five months as an engraver. He left an envelope addressed to Miss M. Zellmer, No. 332 East Eighty-fourth street, New York, care of W. Barton, but the police were unable to find a letter addressed to her.

Letters headed with that address from a New York woman, however, showed that the cause of his love did not run smoothly, and there were passages that seemed to refer to a threat on Stahl's part to commit suicide.

The police here have sent word to Miss Zellmer.

KISSAM'S SISTER CHIEF MOURNER.

Her Marriage To-Morrow Follows the Funeral To-Day of Vanderbilt Kinsman, Who Died in Newark Hotel.

(Special to The Evening World.)
NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 23.—The funeral of William Vanderbilt Kissam, who was found dead in the Planters' Hotel here, was held to-day from the man's late home, No. 15 West street, where he boarded with Frank L. Reib. None of the Vanderbilt family of New York, with which Kissam was connected, was present.

The chief mourner was the dead man's sister, Miss Josephine De Mott Kissam, who is to be married to-morrow to Harry W. Olmsted, the latter accompanying her at the funeral.

Several friends from New York were also present.

The death of young Kissam will not interfere with the marriage of his sister to-morrow. The ceremony, which will be private, will be performed at the home of the bride's grandmother, at Hackensack, N. J.

It was intended to have the marriage public at the home of Samuel H. Kissam, No. 10 East Forty-eighth street, New York, an uncle of the bride, but the young man's death caused the change in the arrangements.

BEGGED FOR AID TO SEE DEAD HUSBAND

Women and Children Stranded Here, While the Father Lay Dying in His Far Home in Colorado.

Clerk William Walsh, in the Outdoor Poor Department, listened to a pathetic story of a woman and her five children stranded in New York City, with her husband lying dead in Leadville, Colo., and she without means of getting there. It all came out when Mrs. Anna Oreskey applied at the department for relief to-day.

The woman said that her husband had been a smelter in the mines at Leadville and earned good wages. In order that she and her children could pay their relatives in Colorado a visit, her husband sold their cottage in Colorado five months ago and with the proceeds the family went abroad.

While in Austria she received word that her husband was dying. She got together what little money she could and arrived in New York five days ago. Soon she was penniless and she and her five children, the oldest being a boy of sixteen and the youngest a girl of four months, had wandered around the city, begging, and sleeping in hallways and sheds.

Becoming desperate, the woman appealed to a policeman, who directed her to the Outdoor Poor Department.

Clerk Walsh informed Supt. Merwin of the woman's plight and he made an investigation of her story. He found that her husband was dead and that her story was true in every particular. The woman and her children were sent to the St. Barnabas Home, at Mulberry and Bleeker streets, and on Wednesday will be given transportation to Leadville.

SHOPIFTER HAD POCKET 3 FEET DEEP

Well Dressed and of Evident Refinement, She Refused Arrest to Give Any Account of Herself.

SKIRT FILLED WITH BOOTY.

She Declared Her Name Was Augusta Kiss, but Admitted to the Detectives Afterward that It Was Fictitious.

In the Jefferson Market Police Court to-day a well-dressed woman, who refused to give any information about herself, was arraigned before Magistrate Deuel, charged with shoplifting. She refused even to enter plea and the Court held her in $300 bail for trial.

Saturday afternoon she was arrested by Detective-Sergeants Blake and Kiln, of Inspector McCluskey's staff, in a Sixth avenue department store, where, the detectives told the Court, she was caught in the act of stealing several articles.

When arrested and taken to the Police Headquarters she was searched, and to the astonishment of the detectives she was found to have a false pocket in her skirt. The pocket was three feet deep and contained, the detectives charged, a muff, a waist, a belt, a leather belt and six pairs of socks, all valued at $18.46. It was said that all the articles were stolen from the store in which the woman was caught.

"The detectives thought the woman was a professional shoplifter, but at Police Headquarters she was not identified by any of the store's employees. At Headquarters she was booked as Jane Doe, but when committed to the Tombs she gave the name of Augusta Kiss. She refused to tell where she lived. She admitted that the name she gave was fictitious.

The woman is about thirty-five years old and of evident refinement.

COL. JEWELL GETS ALIMONY REDUCED

Former Appraiser Now Need Pay Only $75, Instead of $150, Pending Trial of Suit and Counter-Suit for Divorce.

The plaintive plea of Col. James A. Jewell for a modification of the court order to pay $150 a month alimony to his wife, pending the trial of their suit and counter suit for absolute divorce, was granted to-day by Justice Scott of the Supreme Court. At any rate the force of H. B. Clowson's argument that it would be difficult for the Colonel to pay $150 a month out of an income of nothing at all seemed to strike the Justice, for he compromised the matter to-day by reducing the alimony to $75 a month.

This grievous Louis J. Grant, for he has been known by a pseudonym, wrote to "Dear Jamie" by Mrs. Jewell, when she heard that the Colonel was about to be appointed to the Senate. McClelland, of Westchester, began him to-day, after the matter had been kept them apart and come to head make her happy again. She promised to get a divorce and keep him so that he would never need to work again.

Then Colonel is wondering now how he will ever raise the $75 per.

COULDN'T FOOL HIM.

Doctor Was Firm and Was Right.

Many doctors forbid their patients to drink coffee, but the patients still drink it on the sly, and thus spoil all the doctor's efforts and keep themselves sick. Sometimes the doctor makes sure that the patient is not drinking coffee, and there was a case of that kind in St. Paul, where a business man said:

"After a very severe illness last winter, the doctor said Postum Coffee was the only thing that I could drink, and he just made me quit coffee and drink Postum. My illness was caused by indigestion from the use of tea and coffee. Postum was the state of my stomach was so bad that it became terribly inflamed, and finally resulted in a rupture. I had not drunk Postum very long before my lost blood was restored and my stomach was well and strong, and I have now been using Postum for almost a year. When I got up from bed after my illness I weighed 85 pounds, and now my weight is 120. There is no doubt that Postum was the reason for this wonderful improvement, and I shall never go back to tea or coffee, but shall always stick to the food drink that brought me back to health and strength." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.
